Band Seeks Support

Dear Editor,

Hi! My name is Drew. I'm contacting you because I'm in a band over in England. We've been together for over five years now and we have quite a lot under our belts. Several people in your home state have our single and we have been booked for gigs all over Sacramento and San Francisco. Someone in one of your local bands arranged this. She loves our stuff and apparently so does half her college, so now we are coming out on our own money. She arranged a back line and we will be there from September 5 for however long it takes.

Now I know this might seem forward, but I think you would really like our stuff. The band is called The Ouija Problem and we were voted second best band in Europe. We beat 1,600 bands in a competition in Germany. We also have contacts with the main men of Ernie Ball Guitars & Strings in Los Angeles and they are very keen to get us over there. So if you fancy getting us some publicity then let us know.

Appeal For Bi-National Couples

Dear Editor,

I'm asking for your personal and immediate help on a Congressional bill that directly affects my life.

I have lived with my partner, a German citizen, for the past eight years. When his work visa expired in February 2000, he had to leave the U.S. As you can imagine, this forced separation has caused us both a great deal of emotional pain and financial hardship. Our situation is not unlike that affecting thousands of other same gender bi-national couples around the country.

Among heterosexual bi-national couples, U.S. citizens can marry their foreign partners and then apply to the Immigration & Naturalization Service (INS) for immigration permission (a "green card") for their partner. Because same sex marriage is not yet legal, this option is closed to me and Bernd and thousands of others.

To remedy this, on February 14, 2001, N.Y. Congressman Jerrold Nadler, who describes current U.S. policy of forced separation of bi-national same sex couples as "gratuitously cruel," introduced a bill (HR 690 - Permanent Partners Immigration Act) to allow gay and lesbian citizens to sponsor their foreign partners for U.S. immigration. If this bill passes, more than 60,000 people could benefit by petitioning for their partners. Please write a letter to your Congressperson in Washington now and ask them to support HR690, the Permanent Partners Immigration Act. Write a second letter to your U.S. Senator urging him/her to introduce a companion bill in the Senate. To find out who your Congressperson and Senator are call 202-224-3121. Key points to mention when contacting your Representative include:

a. Thirteen nations allow their gay/lesbian citizens to sponsor their foreign partners for immigration (Canada, Great Britain, South Africa, Australia, France, Netherlands, Norway, Denmark, New Zealand, Belgium, Finland, Iceland, and Sweden). There's no reason for the U.S. to lag behind in recognizing basic human rights for its gay citizens.

b. Alan Greenspan officially supports increased immigration as a key to keeping our economy booming. He favors increasing "the H1B cap," the number of work permits that allow foreigners to work here for a specific time. Because many partners of gays are here on this type of permit, allowing them to come in under the Permanent Partners Immigration Act would free up additional H1B work permits.

c. The INS purports to promote family unity. It is important that the agency include families of gay and lesbian U.S. citizens, giving them the same rights in immigration matters as heterosexual families enjoy. To track this bill's progress, or to see the wording, log on to thomas.loc.gov/ and search for "HR 690."

Thank you for taking the time to respond to this extremely important request, and thank you for your support.

Sincerely,
Tim Sally

Remembering A Lost Child

By Colin Brownlee
MGW Guest Writer

Below is an excerpt from a four-page letter written by Hamed Nastoh, a fourteen-year-old boy that committed suicide because classmates teased and bullied him thinking he was gay.

His words were way too powerful to not share. They were printed in the February 1, 2001 edition of The Vancouver Sun. Transcribing this was not easy.

"Dear Mom & Dad:

The first thing is, I love you Mom and Dad, but you didn't understand why I had to commit suicide.

There was so much going on and I tried to cope with it, but couldn't take it anymore....

It was horrible. Everyday, I was teased and teased, everyone calling me gay, fag, queer and I would always act like it did not bug me....

But I was crying inside me. It hurt me so bad, because I wasn't gay. And when people said it, my own friends never backed me up. They just laughed. I would pray to God every night for everyone to stop saying that.

I know that you are going to miss me and that you will never forgive me, but you will never understand. You weren't living my life. I hate myself for doing this to you. I really, really hate myself, but there is no other way out for me.

Sure, I could have taken a gun and shot everyone in the head... but what would the point be?

I know I left my room messy. You can clean it if you want, but please don't sell or throw anything away. Even though I won't be there, I still want that room. It has to be my room....

I love you Mom and Dad. Please, please tell the people at school why I did this. I do not want somebody else to do what I have done.

Mom, after my death, please, please go the schools and talk to kids that bullying and teasing has big consequences. And tell them to please stop crying. That's just my only wish and I hope people will miss me. Please visit my grave often, so I am not lonely."

Those not familiar with the story behind this story, these are the last words from a kid that was a victim of homophobic taunts. Right after his death, his mother made a statement to the press that, "He was not gay. Being gay went against everything that we taught him and believe in." The family is of an Indo-Canadian background. She also explained that after a gay teacher suggested Hamed was not heterosexual, she insisted that he be punished. As you can imagine, if Hamed was gay, he would not have a place to seek support in school nor from his family, friends, or religion. Discussion of his sexuality was not really an option.

What we do know is that just being suspected of being gay in high school can be severe that many, like Hamed, feel compelled to take their own life because they have no where to turn.

I was also a recipient of taunts, bullying, and homophobic violence in high school. I am very passionate about this issue. Even though it was over twenty years ago, I still carry some scars.

I urge you to send his words far and wide. Maybe if we appeal to the compassion of parents, teachers, school boards, religious leaders, media, and governments we can begin to put an end to this endless cycle of misery that we are inflicting on our youth. ▼

Koretz Announces Family Protection Plan

SACRAMENTO, CA – Assemblymember Paul Koretz (D-West Hollywood) introduced AB 1338, "The California Family Protection Act." It is a Vermont-like civil union bill aimed at correcting the imbalance between same sex and heterosexual couples. It will provide increased rights and responsibilities for at least 400,000 families.

"The bill is about equality. This bill is about preserving basic rights. This bill is about protecting and encouraging strong and stable families," said Koretz. "Same sex couples who choose to make a lifetime commitment to each other should not be discriminated against and should not be deprived of the same rights, protections, and benefits that are granted to different sex couples who are legally able to marry. They should also be held accountable for the same responsibilities as opposite sex couples."

AB 1338 states, in part, "Despite longstanding social and economic discrimination, many lesbian and gay Californians have formed lasting, committed, and caring relationships with persons of the same sex... The state's interest in encouraging close and caring families, promoting stable and lasting family relationships, and protecting all family members from the economic and social consequences of abandonment, divorce, and the death of loved ones applies equally strongly to families formed by same sex couples as families formed by different sex couples."

Organization support of the bill includes Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, American Civil Liberties Union of Northern and Southern California, and the National Center for Lesbian Rights. Info. 319-2142 ▼

Charitable Choice Plan Faces Mixed reactions

WASHINGTON D.C. — George W. Bush has initiated Charitable Choice, a plan that would allow government funding of religious organizations that provide social services. John Ashcroft originally drafted the plan during his term as Senator. Critics believe it violates Constitutional separations of church and state as well as allowing race, religion, and sexual orientation based discrimination.

Under current guidelines, religious organizations can receive government funding as long as they do not discriminate or actively promote religion. Although the Supreme Court ruled that the First Amendment prohibits federal funding of sectarian institutions, Bush would like to forgo their decision and allow it.

Most religious institutions are exempt from Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, so they are allowed to hire and fire employees based on religious beliefs. Charitable Choice would not change this policy, so government funded agencies could select employees and service recipients solely on religion. It would also allow federal officials to decide which faiths to recognize and the amount selected faiths should receive. This power, many claim, the government should not have.

Ann Mulligan, States Legislative Coordinator for Americans United for Separation of Church and State fears Charitable Choice would produce negative results in social services across the nation. "Charitable Choice... [subjects] houses of worship to government rules and regulations that will inevitably follow taxpayer dollars," she said.

"In addition, by funding social services that may already be performed with voluntary contributions," she continued, "Charitable Choice could cause such contributions to diminish if the religious institution receives public dollars to provide the services. This would make the religious institution dependent on the government for money."

Additionally Mulligan believes it would transform religious ministries into government administrative centers. This may lead to the termination of certain benefits and reporting on individuals served. "It would undermine the traditional role of religion as prophetic critic of government," she said. "Like every other government-subsidized group, religion will be less likely to bite the hand that feeds it." Info. 202-466-3234, au.org ▼

United Way Adds Discrimination Policy

SACRAMENTO, CA — The United Way recently passed an anti-discrimination resolution that included sexual orientation. Although officials claim the Boy Scouts Of America's (BSA) anti-GLBT and atheist policies are not being targeted, the new guidelines will prevent BSA from receiving United Way funding.

Organizations that receive United Way funding will not be asked to sign an agreement, but instead will be trusted to enforce the new policy. Anyone is welcome to submit a complaint if they feel an agency has shown discriminatory behavior.

Local BSA chapters should not be adversely affected by the financial cut. Chapters will still receive payroll deductions made through the United Way. Most of BSA's $3 million annual budget comes from direct donations. Info. 929-1417, gec-bsa.org ▼

Senate Committee Passes James Byrd Jr. Act

AUSTIN, TX - The Senate Committee on Criminal Justice approved the James Byrd Jr. Hate Crimes Act, a measure designed to prevent crimes motivated by prejudice. In a 5-1 vote, the committee advanced the Act, Senate Bill 87. Senators Kenneth Armbrister (D-Victoria), Mike Moncrief (D-Fort Worth), Steve Ogden (R-Bryan), Royce West (D-Dallas), and John Whitmire (D-Houston) supported the legislation. Senator Teel Bivins (R-Amarillo) voted against the Act. Senator

Todd Staples (R-Palestine) chose to not vote.

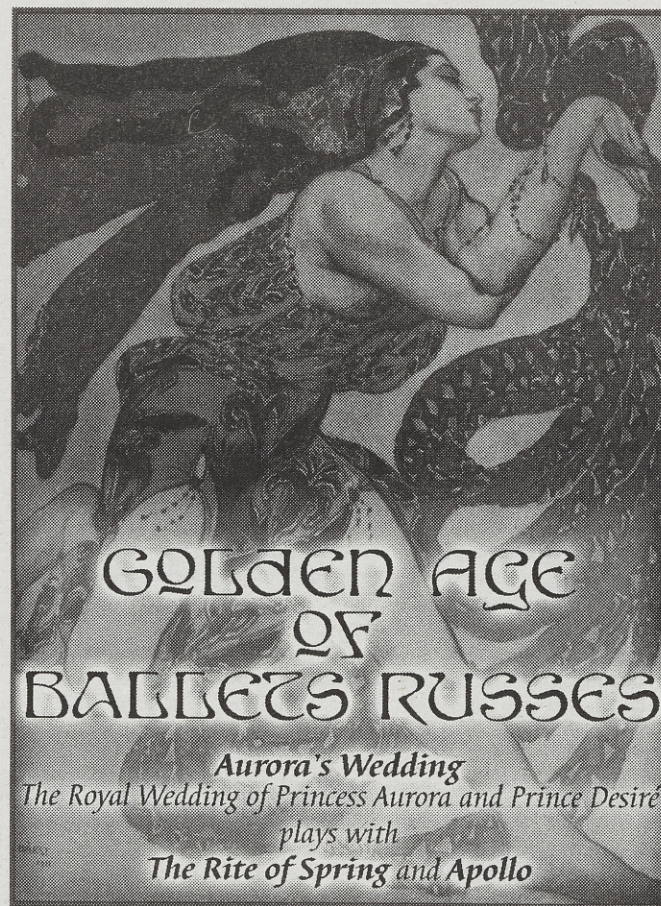

"I applaud the senators, courage in continuing to fight for the James Byrd Hate Crimes Act and ultimately for the citizens of Texas," said Dianne Hardy-Garcia, Executive Director of the Lesbian Gay Rights Lobby of Texas. "This 5-1 vote shows great momentum behind the Act. I am hopeful that all senators stand with this committee in sending a message to our entire state and the country that that the terrorization any group of citizens because of hate will not be tolerated in Texas."

The committee's decision was an about-face from last session when it killed the Byrd Act after its passing the House. Critics believe George W. Bush played a key role in its failure.

Apprendi v. New Jersey found that the hate-based motive must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt in order to enhance penalties. The Byrd Act contains specific language that suits the Court's standard.

Senator Rodney Ellis (D-Dallas) sponsored the Byrd Act. Byrd was a 49-year-old African American man that was dragged to death behind a pickup truck on June 7, 1998 in Jasper. The three men involved were found guilty of capital murder. Byrd's family feels that they were treated unfairly and rudely by Bush during the one meeting he granted them. Bush also refused to attend Byrd's funeral even though all Democratic lawmakers were present. Info. 512-474-5475 ▼

UNDER THE DOME'S Rhode Island Lawmaker Comes Out

MGW Staff

PROVIDENCE, RI – Representative Nancy Hetherington (D-Cranston) made history when she came out as a lesbian recently. She is the state's first openly LGBT legislator. She acknowledged her sexual orientation while writing a commentary for the Providence Journal supporting civil unions. Representatives David Cicilline (D-Providence) and Michael Pisaturo (D-Cranston) have also admitted to being gay during this session.

"Nancy Hetherington deserves enormous credit for her courageous willingness to tap into the positive power of coming out in the legislative workplace," said Victory Fund Executive Director Brian K. Bond. "As more gay and lesbian incumbents are coming out, more are finding that honesty really is the best policy. Voters respect and re-elect public servants who are true to themselves while tackling the issues of concern to their constituents."

First elected in 1994, Hetherington has become known as an advocate for adult education, welfare, health care, and people with disabilities. She is an ordained Methodist minister, a professional social worker, and member of the House of Representatives' Health, Education, and Welfare Committee.

According to the Victory Fund, there are now forty-three openly GLBT state legislators serving in twenty-one states. This is an increase from thirty-five GLBT lawmakers last year. Info. 401-461-4533, rep-hetherington@rilin.state.ri.us ▼

PFAW Creates Coalition of Coalitions

MGW Staff

WASHINGTON D.C. – People For The American Way (PFAW) began a "Fair Taxes For All" coalition to influence the Bush Administration's proposed surplus spending plan. Lead by PFAW President Ralph G. Neas and American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees member Jerry McEntee, the group hopes to influence Bush to devote more government funding to public education, health care, and campaign finance reform. Fair Taxes For All member organizations include AFL-CIO, National Council of Women's Organizations, and Gay, Lesbian And Straight Education Network among almost 500 others.

"We're fighting for lower and middle income working families, for children, for seniors, for people of color and people with disabilities, for women. We're here to fight for every American who expects our government to play fair and to act responsibly," said Neas. "We're here because the tax cut proposals that we heard from President Bush two nights ago are anything but fair - anything but fiscally responsible."

Bush's proposed tax cuts favor the rich at the expense of everyone else."

PFAW's examination of the ten-year plan would offer the most wealthy 1% of Americans an average tax cut of $45,000 annually. About 6 million middle class families would receive an average of $501 annually. The poorest 22% of Americans will not be affected by the plan at all. People who earn too little to pay income taxes, but do pay payroll taxes, will also not be affected. Info. 202-467-4999, pfaw.org ▼

BSA Policies Exposed On Film

SAN FRANCISCO, CA – Bay Area Reporter's David Batterson reported that Scout's Honor recently won the Playboy Foundation's Freedom of Expression Award and Sundance Film Festival's Audience Award. Tom Shepard and D. Stuart Harrison directed and produced the documentary on the Boy Scouts of America's (BSA) anti-GLBT guidelines. Scout's Honor features commentary from people that have been fired from BSA positions after disclosing their GLBT sexual orientation. The film also tells the stories of James Dale, a gay man that sued BSA for discrimination after he was expelled and twelve-year-old Petaluma resident Steven Cozza, founder of Scouting For All.

Shepard spent three years filming the documentary and researching ex-BSA members. He believes, "the film really looks at what happens when gay and straight people come together with a common purpose: to expunge prejudice."

FOOD & WINE

Austrian/German Cuisine At Its Best

By Randy Hartley
MGW Staff

I love ethnic foods and restaurants. Fortunately, the Sacramento area has an excellent variety of good Italian, Mexican, and Asian restaurants, among many others, to choose from. The foods and atmospheres created by restaurant owners set the mood and help celebrate the different traditions of the countries their recipes and styles of cooking.

Not too long ago, a good friend introduced me to Café Vienna, our area's only Austrian/German restaurant serving authentic cuisine from Austria and Germany.

Entering through an impressive buffet area (used for lunch and special occasions) the dining room is warm, clean, well appointed and spacious. The tables are large and set beautifully. It is punctuated with catchy Austrian and German melodies playing around you and can sometimes cause you to dance in place at your table.

While service and speed are not the forte of Café Vienna, all is forgiven when the food starts to flow. Breads are meted out as though they were the precious part of the meal, a concept foreign to most restaurants, but they are fresh, interesting and filling.

The entrees are varied and include German beef rouladen, sauerbraten, Hungarian gulasch and paprika chicken, bratwurst, spatzle, sweet and sour red cabbage, German potato pancakes, sausage dinners and steaks as well as many other tasty dishes. Price range $11.95 through $18.95.

We started with the European salad (Germanic-style) of shredded carrots, pickled cucumbers, tomato perfectly blended and was served with spatzle (a fresh egg based Austrian pasta) and sweet and sour red cabbage.

The center-cut pork chop was baked in a special rosemary-wine sauce and was served with potato dumplings, sweet and sour red cabbage and fabulous apple fritters. The pork was moist, tender and among one of the best I have eaten.

Desserts include apple strudel and fritters, black forest chocolate cake, and hazel nut torte just to name a few. The apple fritters are a must for at least one person at the table and the other choices must be seen, if not shared.

A complete and appropriate beer and wine selection is available. Coffees are fresh and are served in classic mugs.

Ivonne Morgan, owner and chef prepares all dishes from scratch using many family recipes in one of the largest, cleanest and best out fitted kitchens I have ever seen in a local restaurant.

You will love the style of cuisine. You will love Café Vienna!

Lunch buffet is served M-F, 11am - 2pm. Dinner is served Monday through Thursday from 5-9pm, Friday and Saturday 5-10pm. Dinner reservations are recommended.

Café Vienna also is available for banquets and has Saturday (usually the first Saturday of the month) dine and dance nights that include a sumptuous dinner buffet for $23.00 per person. Dinner for two about $50.00 ▼

The Revenge of Ripley

FILM -

You haven't heard the last of The Talented Mr. Ripley. John Malkovich takes over from Matt Damon in the upcoming film version of Patricia Highsmith's third Ripley novel, Ripley's Game. Filming in Venice, the picture is set twenty years after the events in The Talented Mr. Ripley and has Tom married and living in French estate. A personal slight at a social function, brings on Ripley's wrath forcing him to seek revenge. When a friend, played by Dougray Scott (Mission Impossible II) asks for his help in committing murder, Ripley decides to include the offending party in the scenario. Effectively killing two birds with one plot. Could Ripley Meets Andy Hardy be far behind? ▼▼▼

Despite Kip Pardue's performance as a gay guy forced to attend heterosexual training camp in the movie But I'm A Cheerleader, he's still not a household name. A well-deserved career boost is at hand, as the young actor stars opposite Sylvester Stallone in the April 27 release, Driven. As a hot shot champion race driver on the edge, Pardue is paired with a former race champ, Stallone, who helps him get his life and career back on track. The picture was directed by Renny Harlin (Die Hard 2) and costars Burt Reynolds, Stacy Edwards (Kathy Bates' lover in Primary Colors), Gina Gershon (Showgirls), Robert Sean Leonard (In the Gloaming) and Cristián de la Fuente (Family Law). ▼▼▼ Guy Pearce (L.A. Confidential) reteams with his producer from The Adventures of Priscilla, Queen of the Desert, Al Clark for their next project. The film, a British black comedy called Blood & Guts, gets underway in July. ▼▼▼

Writer John August has found great success as one of the many co-writers of the recent Charlie's Angels film. He is already attached as scribe for such upcoming film projects as the live action version of Scooby Doo starring Freddie Prinze Jr., a remake of Barbarella with Drew Barrymore in the title role, and the Steven Spielberg sci-fi thriller Minority Report featuring Tom Cruise. With such auspicious addition to his resume, add August's name to the list of most powerful gay movers and shakers in Hollywood. ▼▼▼ Ellen Burstyn (That's Life) is in the running for the movie adaptation of the best-selling novel "Divine Secrets of the Ya-Ya Sisterhood." The Oscar winner would play Vivi, the mom of a neurotic playwright (isn't that superfluous?) who tries to repair their broken relationship. Shooting starts in the spring for Warner Brothers and first-time director Callie Khouri. You may recognize Khouri's name as writer and co-producer of Thelma & Louise. ▼▼▼

Gay producer/writer Kevin Williamson (Dawson Creek) is diving forward despite cancellation of his series Wasteland and the critically panned movie Teaching Mrs. Tingle. Williamson has partnered with Greg Berlanti (Broken Hearts Club) to write Her Leading Man for Outerbanks Entertainment, who also brought us Broken Hearts Club. ▼▼▼ last year. If so, you have another chance when the show comes to L.A.'s Shubert Theatre this spring. The critically and audience acclaimed one-man/woman comedy starring Barry Evans opens May 15 for two weeks though an extension is probable. ▼▼▼

TELEVISION -

Lesbian screenwriter Jane Anderson (If These Walls Could Talk 2) has When Billie Beat Bobby as her latest project. The Emmy Award winner helms this retelling of the 1972 battle of the sexes tennis match between Bobby Riggs and Billy Jean King. The lead roles were cast with Holly Hunter as Billie Jean and Ron Silver (Reversal of Fortune) as Bobby, plus Elizabeth Berridge (Amadeus), Kali Rocha (Object of My Affection), Jacqueline McKenzie (Under the Lighthouse Dancing) and Caitlin Martin as Chris Evert. ▼▼▼

Shooting has begun on a new NBC series, which is yet, one more spin off, titled Law & Order: Criminal Intent. Vincent D'Onofrio (The Velocity of Gary) plays a detective with a psychology background who works to solve the department's most difficult and puzzling crimes. If this works it can only lead to limitless possibilities such as Law & Order on Gilligan's Island, Law & Order: Meet the Bradys, and Survivors of Law & Order. ▼▼▼ Patrick Stewart (Jeffrey) has signed for an updated version of Shakespeare's "King Lear" called Boss Lear for TNT and Hallmark Entertainment. A far cry from Elizabethan England, Boss Lear takes place in Texas during the 19th century Mexican revolt. As Boss Lear, Stewart plays a powerful ranch owner when filming begins in April South of the border. The former Captain of the Enterprise will produce the telefilm with wife Wendy Neuss and Robert Halmi. ▼▼▼

FOX is considering a half-hour comedy pilot starring Johnny Galecki (The Opposite of Sex) as grocery store clerk trying to pursue his dream to become a concert cellist. The show, called Bagtime, comes from Executive Producer Bruce Helford (The Drew Carey Show) and is based on the 1977 book by Bob Greene and Paul Galloway, taken from a series of Chicago Sun-Times articles.  Sissy Spacek is reunited with her mother from the film Carrie, Piper Laurie in the original Lifetime cable movie Midwives. The project is based on the best-selling book by Chris Bohjalian, stars Peter Coyote (Erin Brockovich) with Terry Kinney (Oz) and looks at a midwife who finds herself charged with the tragic death of one of her patients. ▼▼▼

The Rock And Roll Hall of Fame And Museum will induct new members to it's austere roster in a formal New York ceremony, March 19. Among this year's inductees are Aerosmith, Paul Simon, British rockers Queen, and US queen Michael Jackson. You wanna bet they'll have someone special to present Michael his award? How about Gary Coleman, Emmanuel Lewis, or Macauley Culkin. Actually, I think Macauley has surpassed the 'You must be this tall to ride Michael' rule.  UK residents get a look at Sheridan Morley's new biography on the late great Sir John Gielgud this month while US readers will have to wait until next year to get it locally. Morley, son of actor Robert Morley, spent ten years on the authorized biography which includes amazing details about Gielgud's life as well as that of Alec Guinness. ***

MISC. - The art and furnishings from late fashion designer, Gianni Versace's Miami palazzo will go on auction April 5-7. Sothebys estimates the collection to be worth between $5-7 million. A December 1999 auction of Picasso owned by Versace brought over $17 million. Remember, you can't find this on e-Bay and it's never too early to start your Christmas shopping. ▼

Turning it down a little can save a lot.

Five easy ways to cut energy use:

It's a Matter of Degrees

For every 1 degree you lower your thermostat, you'll decrease your energy usage by 5 percent. So when you're away or asleep, keep it at 55°. And when you're home, how about 68° and wearing something cozy?

Don't Max Out

Minimize your energy use during the peak demand hours. That's from 5 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Don't use your large appliances, like washing machines and dryers, during those hours.

Keep the Fridge from Frosting You

Your refrigerator is one of the biggest energy-users in your home. You can save up to $150 a year just by unplugging your second refrigerator.

Full Loads Mean Fewer Loads

Don't run your washer, dryer, or dishwasher unless you have a full load. And use low-temperature wash settings whenever you can. Also, please remember to run them during off-peak hours.

Zap the Megawatt Monsters

Turn off lights in empty rooms and convert to compact fluorescent bulbs. Shut down computers and other electronic equipment when not in use.

Going Stag With Amy Ray

By Pam Huwig
MGW Guest Writer

Let me introduce you to a taste of some of the rawest, edgiest music to hit the studio lately - and to pass through Amy Ray's lips. The Indigo Girls are arguably one of the most contagious bands around. Lucky for us, their bond is strong enough to accommodate and encourage creative solo endeavors. And since the majority of Indigo fans are deeply devoted to the duo known as Emily and Amy, there is no doubt that Amy's first record on her own will be gobbled up by hungry fans - both established and new. Amy recently sat down with Technodyke to discuss The Indigo Girls, being on the road, and going stag.

How did you settle on the title?

I don't know, it just came to me one day before I even started working on the music. I had the title in my head, of what it would be to do a solo record. And I guess stag always conjures up images of a stag party and gender kind of issues. Going stag [laughs].

How would you define Stag?

I think punk is such a broad term. It's definitely punk in its sentiment, in its approach in every way. But musically, it's got songs that are rock, and some folk. But I would say it's in the spirit of punk. That's what I'm drawing from more than anything else on the record.

You handpicked some outstanding musicians to collaborate on Stag. How did you decide which musicians you wanted to participate?

Whenever I've thought about doing a solo record, I just played around with it in my head, it was always, the seeds of it came from wanting to play with these bands that I was really into and record some of the stuff that we would create together. So, when I started thinking of a solo record, I was just like, "Well, rather than getting just one band that I go out and find, I'm already familiar with these bands and the way they play, so it would be easy to fit them into what I'm doing." When I'm writing, I know I can hear my influences; I can tell that it's definitely something The Butchies or someone influenced.

Does Stag mark your solo career, or will we be hearing more from The Indigo Girls?

The Indigo Girls are still going strong. I think it just marks another facet of what me and Emily do. We do separate, and we do stuff together, you know? Stag is very separate from Indigo Girls, but at the same time, my life is so, everything overlaps so much that it doesn't really feel exclusive to anything. I don't know if I'll make another solo record. If I have the songs and the time, I will, I'm sure. But Emily and I are going strong.

Has Emily heard the album yet?

She likes it. She was very into it and responsive to it and had nothing but nice things to say about it.

Well, that's not really a surprise.

Right. Emily is totally supportive of my endeavors.

You have a handsome range of music on Stag - How did you come to write "Johnny Rottentail?"

It's in the tradition of Appalachian murder ballads and hanging ballads. There are a lot of songs from Appalachia that are stories about people getting hung [laughs]. I think I was thinking in a fit of anger. But I was also thinking about what my own actions have to do with other people being assholes. It was during the time of the Columbine shootings, and a lot of things going on with bad, bad kids, you know? It always makes me think of what we all did to contribute to that - what is our responsibility?

How about "Hey Castrator?"

I don't know really where it came from lyrically. I was addressing a couple of different things - our own wrestling with the nature that's inside of us. The stereotypical male kind of nature, and what we attribute to that - like exploitation, possessiveness or objectivity. But I also was talking about the high school side of that - everything's always about sex [laughs]. It's my response to that.

Joan Jett sings on this one, right?

Right. I think Joan sings. She sings this other part that has nothing to do with anything [laughs] on the rest of the song. Except that the part she sings addresses the punky women's movement, and the revolutionary impact it's had. That song also asks questions about people becoming complacent.

So, we're all over the place in that song. Musically, it was contingent upon what the rhythm and the drums were doing and it was very apropos for Joan to come in and play rhythm guitar on it. She's a killer guitar player. Joan's part was something that I was thinking about putting on the end of the song, but I wasn't really sure about it. But because she agreed to sing on the song, I wanted to have something showcased.

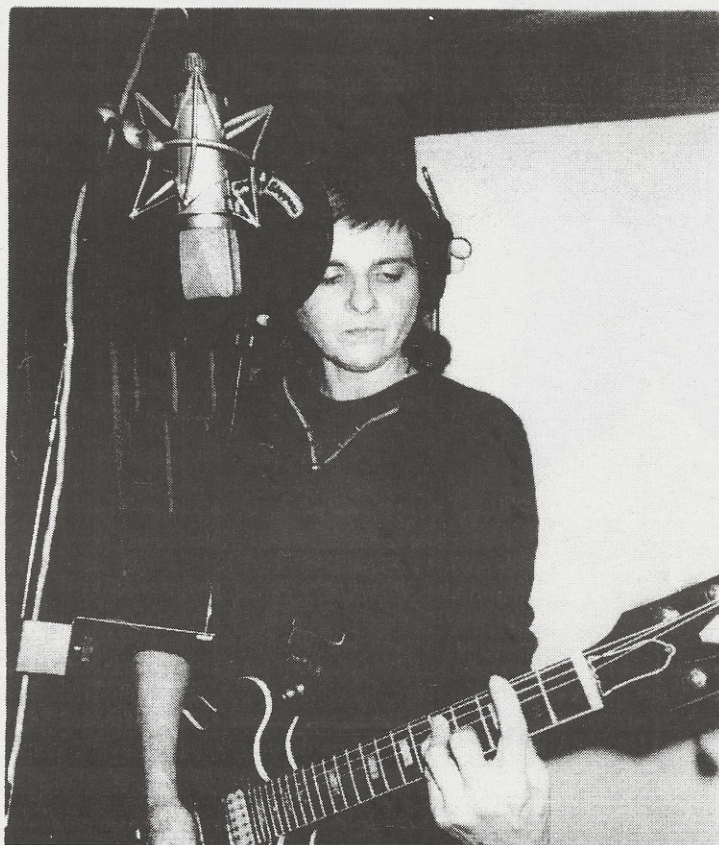

Tell me a little about the other musicians who worked on the album.

Kate [Shellenbach] and Josephine [Wiggs] are two people I jam with off an on when I'm in New York just for fun. They're great players. I was really specific about choosing artists to participate. I started to get to know The Butchies a few years ago. Kaia [Wilson] had gotten in touch with me about possibly working with Daemon. And even though they decided to put their first record out themselves, we all kept in touch, and they've toured with The Indigo Girls a lot in the past few years.

[The Butchies] definitely surprised me, because a song like "Laramie" didn't seem to be their style. But they wanted to give it a shot, and it was so good. Melissa's drum part on that song is really amazing. It's what I had in my mind. All I said to her about what I was looking for was something that's got the Neil Young feel but that still has a raggaie thing happening - like something different like how The Clash would have done it. And then she just automatically did it - it was great.

On "Mts of Glory" you sing "Gonna miss being the boy, gonna miss being the man..." Do I even need to ask?

[Laughs] A lot of it is talking about gender issues. It's sort of my own wrestling with the part of me that really heavily identifies with men. In a relationship, I feel like the boy sometimes rather than the girl. We all wanna be both [laughs] - nobody wants to just be one thing.

This was a specific breakup songs, where it's like what's the thing I'm gonna miss most about the relationship, and it was kind of ironic. I'm in it pretty heavily with irony because I think was struggling with not wanting to feel like the boy all the time, but when it was taken away from me, I was like, 'Hey, wait a minute.' It's supposed to be a sexy, punky, you know, fuck you sort of song.

How is the big, bad press machine reacting to Stag?

We had one magazine get in touch with us last week. They got mad at us for asking for a record review when we didn't take an ad out with them.

Well, fuck, some would say that's unethical.

Yep. They said they couldn't believe we were asking for a review when we couldn't afford to take out an ad. And I was just like, 'Wow.' Advertising is expensive and we support as many magazines as we can through ad money. But we can't do a lot of it. But they were pissed anyway.

What gives?

I think media and radio, and probably book publishing too, are going through very parallel situations where it's consolidated to a few owners and the advertisers are pouring in money systematically in a certain way that the magazines or radio responds to. So, in a sense the advertisers are running it. But, not really, I mean, an editor or magazine publisher will say to you 'Well, we can't put this on the cover because the advertisers say it doesn't sell and they won't fund us.' But I think there's a big lack of courage somewhere to stand up and take a risk sometimes - We have a lot of really bland music magazines because they don't. The Rolling Stone, and Spins that have sort of turned into following the trends and responding to the charts.

As most everyone knows, you released Stag on your self-founded record label, Daemon.

How did you get Daemon off the ground? I started it myself. I had a lot of energy back then I guess. Everyday I'd wake up and make phone calls for about two hours - the radio tracking, retail, trying to get press and stuff. Tell me about the Daemon logo.

After founding Daemon Records, The Indigo Girls' Amy Ray released her first solo album, titled Stag. It features the talents of Joan Jett, The Butchies, Kate Shellenbach, and Josephine Wiggs.

How did you come up with the label? It was supposed to be like the opposite of what it usually is - you usually see a human head and an animal legs. But, I thought Daemon was really the opposite of a lot of record labels. I wanted it to be more natural and untamed. I wanted it to be the vehicle that was more human made. One more thing: What do you think about good ol' George Dubya? Oh, I think he's really terrible - very terrible.

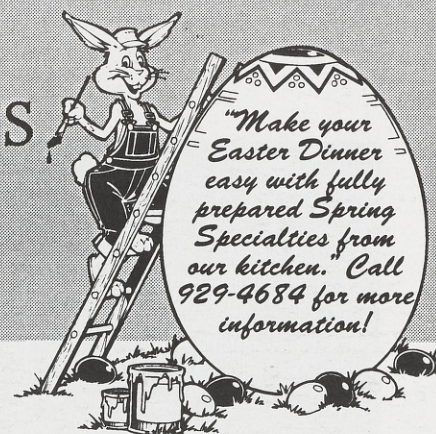

Do you think he's sober?

[Laughs] Some of my friends don't think so, but I think he just slurs naturally. I think the only thing good about him is that he speaks Spanish [laughs].

What do you think is up with Ricky Martin playing at the White House? Does Ricky Martin really like him? People that get asked to go play at the White House and shit, they forget about their conscious. It's weird, it's like they're thinking 'I got asked to go to the White House, I don't care who's in office, I just want to go.' I love Ricky Martin and when I heard he was doing that, I was just like, 'What an idiot.' Maybe he just thinks it's good for his career [sighs].

Amy will be touring with The Butchies in April. Info. DaemonRecords.com. t

Thunder Terror: Dealing With your Dog's Fear

By Randy Jamison
MGW Staff

By definition, thunder phobia is an exaggerated, almost irrational fear. Some dogs remain relatively calm in stormy weather, while others become severely affected. Other loud noises, such as fireworks or gunshots, will elicit the same reaction. As with human phobias, canine phobic behavior tends to worsen with time.

Dogs afraid of thunderstorms indicate it by looking uncomfortable, panting, and perhaps pacing. In time they may tremble and wake their owners at night, seeking unattainable solace. Severely affected dogs will show frantic behavior, apparently trying to escape the thunder surrounding them. If they are housed indoors, they will dig at windows and doorways to get out; if outdoors, they will destroy screens to enter the house.

Unfortunately, treatment of your dog's fear is not as simple as exposing her to a CD of a rain forest or fireworks to desensitize her. Storms in particular involve much more than simple thunder. A respectable storm also comes with lightning, rain and wind, and plummeting barometric pressure, none of which can be adequately recreated for training. For this reason, severely phobic dogs are typically treated with anti-anxiety medication, either in anticipation of storms or, in some geographic regions, for the entire thunderstorm season. In addition, it is helpful to avoid reassuring your dog while she acts nervous, because petting and soothing may be misinterpreted as praise. Instead, offer her a delicious chew treat that she sees only during storms, and encourage her to lie down in one spot. If the anxiety is severe, consult your veterinarian or a behavioral specialist. ▼

Second Killing Renews Fears

WASHINGTON D.C. - The body of Benjamin Varner, 19, was found in his dorm room on the fourth floor of Cogswell Hall at Gallaudet University. This is the same hall where gay student Eric F. Plunkett, 19, was murdered on September 28. The school has about 2,000 deaf or hearing impaired students. Sergeant Joe C. Gentile said that Varner died of multiple stab wounds to the head and body. He had no suspects, motive, or evidence of a connection between the two murders. He suspects that a false fire alarm and a blue and black jacket found at the scene may provide information on the second killing. Info. 202.651.5050, gallaudet.edu ▼

However her work was not presented to high school students because of its lesbian content. Gellar, 17, found herself in the middle of a conflict involving her mentor Dorothy Allison, Holly Hughes, Lisa Kron, and The Public Theater in New York City.

Michele Kämmerer is one of few women firefighters in the nation, but she is probably the only transgender fire chief. She began her career as a heterosexual man, but now identifies as a lesbian woman. Patricia Barber Jazzes It Up

By Stefan Gruenwedel
MGW Staff

Hailed as, "one of the most utterly individual jazz performers to arrive on the scene in years" by the Los Angeles Times, Patricia Barber plays a relaxed, hypnotic style of piano and sings with a smoky, well-enunciated tone.

When I first saw her perform late last year at Bimbo's 365 Club in North Beach, I had no idea how much passion and energy she'd put into her performance. Submitting totally to her mood, she swayed her body and her intonations. She had a way of hunching over the keyboard as if wiped out after a song. She was clearly entranced by her own music making, and so was the audience.

Her most recent album, Nightclub, contains a good sampling of her work, including the ever-popular "Autumn Leaves," "Summer Samba," "A Man and a Woman," and "All of Nothing at All." The tunes may be familiar, but their rhythm and harmonies won't be. Her take is original.

For a relaxed, yet strangely powerful evening of music, check her out in concert or listen to her recordings. Info. 212-253-3000, PatriciaBarber.com ▼

Firm announces cutting-edge policy...

One of the most significant corporate AIDS funding programs ever initiated was recently announced by Botswana's diamond mining giant Debswana, which says it would pay for anti-retroviral AIDS drugs for its workers. The company, which employs 6,000 people, is the world's largest source of diamonds, accounting for 80% of Botswana export earnings and 50% of government revenues. According to United Nations estimates, Botswana has the world's highest incidence of HIV infection, with an adult prevalence rate of 35.8%.

Virus initially attacks men harder than women...

Newly diagnosed men, compared to women at the same stage of infection, have much more virus in their blood, although the difference evens out over time, say researchers at Johns Hopkins University. The study of 156 male and 46 female injection drug users found that the newly diagnosed men had an average of 50,766 particles per milliliter, while the women averaged 15,103. The researchers note, however, that the finding will likely not change anyone's treatment regimen, because treatment recommendations just changed. Treatment guidelines previously recommended initiating treatment when HIV levels reached 20,000 particles per milliliter of blood plasma. The new guidelines advise postponing antiviral therapy until there are 55,000 particles per milliliter.

Meds availability conflict calls for resolution...

Late last year Brazil's leader in the fight against AIDS — an HIV-positive transsexual named Jacqueline Rocha — declared that she would authorize free distribution of generic AIDS drugs in Brazil when the patented versions were not available or affordable. She further noted that Brazil would post the formulas for the generic versions on their website to share with the world if a more practical response was not soon forthcoming from the drug manufacturers, a large number of them in the United States.

In Kenya, that country's health minister has applied to invoke a clause in World Trade Organization regulations written in 1997 that allows the by-pass of patent and trade rules in the event of a life-threatening catastrophe. Kenya says importing cheaper generic drugs is the only way to treat the nearly 3 million people in his country with HIV, since major pharmaceutical companies, he says, are using their patent rights to set prices of drugs at a level above what African nations can afford. Recently, the world's major pharmaceutical companies filed a lawsuit in South Africa to overturn the 1997 law allowing that government to produce and import generic copies of patented drugs. The companies say that granting this authority to South Africa, together with the Brazilian government's defiance of patent protections, threatens the pharmaceutical industry's long-term health, and could impact their funding for intense and ongoing research to discover new meds to fight and treat HIV.

The Bush administration's response is that it will support President Clinton's decision to not impose sanctions against South Africa for bypassing the laws. However, it strongly encourages governments, international agencies, drug companies, and advocacy groups to work together to find a solution that protects commercial rights, respects international trade rules, and brings effective meds to those in all income situations.

In the meantime, Pfizer pharmaceuticals recently signed an unprecedented agreement with South Africa for free distribution for at least two years of Diflucan (used to treat AIDS-related fungal infections of the brain and throat). Over 95,000 bottles of Diflucan arrived in the country in early March.

Heroin use on upswing...

Heroin use is increasing in Baltimore, Atlanta, Boston, Newark, Miami, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis, St. Louis, and New Orleans, says a report by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, in part because the street price of heroin has dropped. In Baltimore, for example, approximately 10% of the entire population is addicted to heroin. Health officials are working to define the best way to spend their funding dollars. Updated plans in Baltimore include a mobile needle exchange clinic, where users turn in dirty needles for clean ones and also receive condoms, bleach, and sterilized water. Heroin has long been a problem in Baltimore, which launched its first methadone treatment program in 1967. Nearly one-third of these folks are now infected with HIV, and 90% have hepatitis C.

Breakthrough procedure in trials...

Clinical trials of a new immune deficiency treatment could prove to be a breakthrough in the fight against HIV, say

Australian researchers. They plan to boost the number of infection fighting T-cells in bone marrow recipients, cancer patients, and folks with AIDS, explaining that the number of T-cells produced slows down with the on-set of puberty, and their treatment will re-use the body's own hormone system to switch off the signaling from the brain that it's time to slow down T-cell production.

Cocktail with no PI shows promise...

Here's some news for those who have become resistant to the protease inhibitors (PIs) that make up most drug combinations to control HIV and AIDS. A 48-week study funded by Glaxo Wellcome shows that folks who had been taking a PI plus two nucleosides (NRTIs) did just as well by substituting the PI with another nucleoside called Ziagen (Abacavir), thus using 3 NRTIs but no protease drugs. Volunteers in the test taking a regimen with the PI, as well as those taking a combo without the PI, were able to maintain a viral load of 400 or less. However, only those taking a PI were able to bring their numbers down near 50. The test specifically compared Crix/AZT/3TC to Ziagen/AZT/3TC. The fairly new Ziagen comes with a warning that, in rare cases, it can cause severe and sometimes fatal reactions. In this study, one volunteer died from an allergic reaction. The other 561 volunteers in both test groups had similar, usual side effects that many folks experience with their combos.

Other researchers commenting on the study said that while this may be a reasonable regimen to keep in reserve, it's important to give proper weight to the risk of allergic reaction that comes with Ziagen. ▼

What's Feelings Got To Do With It?

By Dr. Jeffrey Chernin
MGW Staff

During couples therapy, when I was practicing in Dallas, I would often hear a phrase that started out with "I feel..." followed by things like "that you are not listening to me" or "you should do dishes when I make dinner."

"That isn't a feeling," I would comment. "That's a thought." Many people, even after years of therapy and self-help, do not understand the basic difference between a feeling and a thought.

A feeling is something that you experience in your body. A thought is a concept, notion, or opinion. When you feel something your heart may be pounding, your hands may be clammy, you may experience a heaviness in your chest, and so on.

Common feelings are: sad, angry, hurt, horny, frustrated, confused, and happy. More complex, and often harder to identify, feelings include aggravated, provoked, irked, exasperated, distressed, blue, flustered, and agitated.

Sometimes, it's difficult to distinguish between feelings. For example, there is a thin line between excitement and fear. Even more uncommon, but equally possible, is to feel two seemingly different feelings at the same time.

When you say that you have "mixed feelings" about something, it implies that what you feel does not make sense. But when you examine the logic behind it, it can be perfectly rational. For example, graduating from college can feel thrilling, disappointing, and scary at the same time. It's a thrill to feel a sense of accomplishment, it is disappointing to leave friends and way of life behind, and scary because you may be uncertain about what comes next.

Conversely, two very different feelings can have the same physical sensations. A lump in your throat, heaviness in your chest, and breaking out in a cold sweat can occur when you are learning how to swim (feeling fear) and when you discover your partner is pregnant (feeling elated).

Perhaps the scariest, most confusing and difficult feelings emerge when you learn that you are LGBT. Many non-LGBT people erroneously assume that same-sex attraction is merely physical, not realizing that there is a huge emotional component to same-gender love.

And coming to terms with your sexual orientation involves a myriad of often conflicting emotions. They sneak up on you. They swirl. They overwhelm. Fear. Dread. Relief. Shame. Loss. Worry. Freedom. Anger. Apprehension. Turmoil. Uneasiness. Mistrust. Guilt. Confusion. Joy. Acceptance. And that's just to name a few.

At some point, we all figure out how we are going to deal with these complex, contradictory emotions. No one is able to consistently express his or her feelings in a healthy way. At some point, all of us have had or are having trouble expressing feelings related to being LGBT.

So what do we do?

While many LGBT individuals have supportive, loving family and friends and come out without many problems, most of us start out by denying our same-sex attraction. You can rationalize away same-sex attraction or take drugs or drink in order to blot it out. In fact, people use many ways to run away from their feelings.

Allowing yourself to feel your feelings - even if you can't easily label them - is critical to your well-being. Allowing yourself to feel and express emotions can give you the strength to not use drugs, alcohol, and/or food to cope with unpleasant emotions. It can give you a better mood, and alleviate depression and anxiety. Several studies show it can even lead to a better functioning immune system.

But dealing with feelings is a double-edged sword. We can all work to become better at expressing emotions and, at the same time, rely less on not dealing well with them. The other side, however, is to realize that you will never ever be perfect at feeling and expressing emotions. It is to recognize your humanity and that you aren't perfect and never will be. Some brokenness or imperfection is even part of life.

And becoming comfortable with that imperfect side of ourselves is not easy. It involves tolerating some very unpleasant emotions. The good news is that once you become comfortable in expressing emotions and with your inability to attain complete emotional maturity, you are on the road to being fully human and capable of loving yourself and others.

John R. Wagner, Junior

John Wagner, a lover of books and art and a respected leader and mentor in the field of chemical dependency died on Thursday, February 22 at 8:45pm. He was 55 years old.

John lost his battle with cancer with grace, dignity, and a sense of humor. He was surrounded by family and friends during the past several weeks of his life and died peacefully at home. John was born in San Francisco on March 3, 1945, the son of John R. Wagner Sr. and Muriel Wagner (Dodsworth). He attended Lowell High School in San Francisco and received his undergraduate degree at the University of San Francisco and his Masters Degree from California State University at Hayward.

John's life and career were intertwined with his commitment to remain clean and sober and to assist others in coping with the disease of addiction. Over his twenty-five year career, he counseled and mentored countless people seeking a life of sobriety as well as the many families affected by the addict. He worked at numerous Chemical Dependency Programs throughout California including El Camino, O'Conner, Pomona Valley, and Merritt-Peralta Hospitals, Managed Health Network (formerly Occupational Health Services), and Horizon Services. His role in the field ranged from Counselor, Program Director, Director of Industrial Outreach, to Management Consultant. He taught at Cal State Hayward and had been Vice President and member of the Board of Directors of the California Association of Drinking Driver Treatment Programs. He was also Vice Chairperson of the DUI Advisory Board to the State of California's Department of Alcohol and Drug Programs.

John and his partner Dennis Gunvalson, shared homes in Sacramento and San Francisco for the past nine years of their eleven-year relationship. He was a voracious reader and lover of film, theater, and art. He was a supporter of local organizations including Sacramento AIDS Foundation, Lambda Players Sacramento Public Library, and Homeward Bound (formerly Golden Retriever Rescue). For a number of years he volunteered with at the Sacramento AIDS walk and Christmas Promise, in which he helped deliver gifts to needy families on Christmas Eve. He was also a regular contributor to San Francisco organizations including The James Hormel Center at the San Francisco Public Library, The Center (San Francisco's soon to be opened LGBT community center), and the American Conservatory Theater.

In addition to his partner Dennis, John is survived by his brother George and his wife Pat, and their three children, George Jr., Mike, and Andrea. He is also survived by a large, loving extended family. John's memorial celebration was held on Friday, March 2, 2001 at 2:00 p.m. at Saint Mary the Virgin Episcopal Church in San Francisco. The Sacramento Men's Chorus sang at a beautiful memorial celebration with an abundance of flowers, music, and birthday cake to celebrate John's birthday. He would have been 56-years-old on Saturday March 3. Donations can be made in memory of John to New Leaf (1853 Market Street, San Francisco) or Intercounty Fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous (1540 Market Street Suite 150, San Francisco). ▼

The Cherry Fund will hold a dance starring DJs Alex Lauterstein, Manny Lehman, and Roland Belmares. Proceeds will benefit local non-profit organizations including Mautner Project for Lesbians With Cancer, Whitman-Walker Clinic AIDS Program, and Gay and Lesbian Victory Foundation. Panel Files Complaint Against Judge

CHICAGO, IL – The state Judicial Inquiry Board issued an eight-count complaint against Cook County Judge Susan McDunn. She is charged with preventing two lesbian families from adopting children, disclosing confidential court papers to an anti-LGBT group in Washington D.C. and attempting to appoint members of the group as "secondary guardians," delaying adoption proceedings, improperly questioning the mothers about their sexual histories, and failing to grant motions to remove her from the cases. Same-sex couple adoption has been legal in Illinois since 1995. Info. 312-663-4413, lambdalegal.org ▼

WASHINGTON D.C. – The body of Benjamiin Varner, 19, was found in his dorm room on the fourth floor of Cogswell Hall at Gallaudet University. This is the same hall where gay student Eric F. Plunkett, 19, was murdered on September 28. The school has about 2,000 deaf or hearing impaired students. Sergeant Joe C. Gentile said that Varner died of multiple stab wounds to the head and body. He had no suspects, motive, or evidence of a connection between the two murders. He suspects that a false fire alarm and a blue and black jacket found at the scene may provide information on the second killing. Info. 202.651.5050, gallaudet.edu ▼

AFA Leader Works To Reverse Civil Rights

MIDLAND, MI – Gary Glenn, Head of the American Family Association of Michigan (AFA), has taken on the mission of removing LGBT people from media, politics, and society for their own good, he claims. "Our position on homosexuality is the only position that exhibits true compassion for our fellow man," he said. He claims that homosexuality is unnatural and a threat to life, health, and Christian values. Glenn played a role in Traverse City's removal of rainbow unity stickers from their city vehicles and the defeat of several non-discrimination ordinances. Info. 313-537-3323, tri.org ▼

Catholic Student Beaten While Unconscious

HELENA, MT – A gay student at Carroll College has withdrawn from school fourteen days after being struck on the head with a bottle, knocked unconscious, then beaten in his dorm room. He was returning from the showers in Borromeo Hall early in the morning. The attack occurred January 17, but officials of the Roman Catholic college did not inform police or students for almost a month. The student, 22, could not identify his attackers. The school has withheld his name and details of the incident. Attackers also wrote "Die Fag" on his skin with a marker. Cuts on his eye resulting from the beating required surgery. Info. Cameron refers to GLBT people as "the enemy" and produced a video called The Gay Agenda. Info. 954-777-0966 ▼
